Cat Trouble

Salem is a big softy of a cat. He is black and white. He loves to eat and sleep. He has a great life except for one thing. He does not like the cat next door. Salem and Tabby Tom just don't get on.

Last week, they had a really big fight. Salem came off worse. He slinked in the back door and kept licking his front paw. The next day, we could all see why. His paw was very swollen. He could not walk on it. Mam decided he needed to go to the vet, so Dad brought him.

I helped to get Salem into the cat box. He hates it so it was not easy. Then we put him into the car. He hissed and scratched all the way to the vet's surgery. He went very quiet when we got there, however. He knew where he was and he really wasn't pleased.

Peter, the vet, looked at his paw.

'It is a bite,' he said, showing us the teeth marks. 'I will need to operate in order to clean the wound.'

Poor Salem had to be put under for a short while. The wound was then cleaned by the vet. Salem was feeling very sorry for himself when we brought him home. Maybe he will be a bit more careful when he comes up against Tabby Tom the next time. ■

CAT AND MOUSE

The people of Ancient Egypt grew a lot of wheat. It rarely rains in Egypt so the soil is very dry. Every year, they would wait for the River Nile to flood after the rains. Then they would sow the wheat in the wet, muddy ground. After the harvest, they would put the wheat into big storehouses. This meant they would have enough to eat for the rest of the year.

Mice like wheat. They became a real pest for the Egyptians. Because of this, the people of Egypt started to use cats to help them to protect their food. At the time, there were lots of cats living wild in Egypt. They were cousins of the great lions and every bit as fierce in their own way.

Cats became really good at hunting the mice. The Egyptians then began to keep them as pets. They loved them and even had a god of cats in their temples!

When the Ancient Romans came to Egypt, they too became fond of cats. Soon cats began to spread right across the Roman Empire. Imagine that your pet cat at home has a history that goes all the way back to the Ancient Romans and Ancient Egyptians. ■

*Note: The Aral Sea was the fourth largest lake in the world. It has been shrinking since the 1960s. This is because the rivers that fed it were diverted. By 2007, it had declined to 10% of its original size. There is a lot of work being done to save the Aral Sea.

Carrauntoohill

Carrauntoohill, in County Kerry, is the highest mountain in Ireland. It is 1,038 metres high. That is more than a kilometre! It is part of the Macgillycuddy's Reeks mountain range. The nearest large town is Killarney. There is a big metal cross on the summit (top) of the mountain. The cross is five metres high.

Many people visit Kerry to see the lovely mountains, lakes and valleys there. Some people like to climb the mountains. Carrauntoohill is a favourite one to try. It is not an easy mountain to climb, however, and only the best climbers should try it.

There are lots of steep, tricky parts to get past on the mountain. Some of these even have scary names like the Devil's Ladder or the Hag's Glen. The weather can be a problem too. Thick clouds can roll in from the Atlantic Ocean and these are like the thickest fog. Climbers often cannot see where they are going. Sometimes people get hurt on the mountain because of this.

If there is an accident, some very brave people will go to help hurt climbers. This group is called The Kerry Mountain Rescue Team. These heroes know the mountain better than anybody. They will find and help anyone who is lost or hurt on the mountain. ■
